Best Practice 1

Title: UN Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs)

Objectives:

- To align college activities with all 17 UN Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs).
- To foster awareness and engagement among students, faculty, and staff regarding sustainable development.
- To demonstrate PHCASC's commitment to contributing positively to local and global sustainability efforts.

Context:

PHCASC recognizes the importance of sustainability in addressing global challenges and has made a strategic decision to integrate the UN SDGs into its academic and extracurricular activities. By doing so, the college aims to empower its community to become agents of positive change and contribute meaningfully to sustainable development.

Practice:

- Throughout the academic year 2023-24, PHCASC implemented various initiatives and activities to address each of the 17 SDGs:
  - Sustainable Development Lecture Series: Inviting experts to deliver talks on each SDG to raise awareness and understanding among students and faculty.
  - Student-led Projects: Encouraging students to initiate projects related to specific SDGs, such as waste management, renewable energy promotion, and community outreach programs.
  - Curriculum Integration: Incorporating SDGs into course content across disciplines to ensure all students receive education on sustainability issues.
  - Campus Sustainability Initiatives: Implementing measures to reduce carbon footprint, minimize waste generation, and promote eco-friendly practices within the campus.

Evidence of Success:

- Increased student engagement in sustainability-related activities, demonstrated by higher participation rates in student-led projects and events.
- Positive feedback from faculty and students regarding the relevance and impact of the Sustainable Development Lecture Series.
- Measurable improvements in campus sustainability metrics, such as reduced energy consumption and waste diversion rates.

Problems Encountered and Sources Required:

- Limited resources for implementing large-scale sustainability projects.

- Challenges in changing entrenched behaviors and attitudes towards sustainability among some members of the college community.
- Need for additional funding and partnerships to support long-term sustainability initiatives.
- Requirement for ongoing training and capacity building for faculty and staff to effectively integrate SDGs into curriculum and operations.

Best Practice 2

Title: Comprehensive Mentoring Practices

Context:

Pillai HOC College of Arts, Science, and Commerce has developed a robust mentoring system to support student development and academic success. The institution recognizes the importance of personalized guidance and peer support in fostering a conducive learning environment. To achieve this, the college has implemented a multi-tiered mentoring approach that includes MMM (Mentor-Mentee Mode), MPG (Mentoring through Peer Groups), and VM (Vertical Mentoring).

Practice:

The mentoring practices at Pillai HOC College are structured into three distinct modes:

1. MMM (Mentor-Mentee Mode): This mode pairs students with faculty mentors who provide individualized support, guidance, and academic advice. Mentors help mentees set academic goals, navigate their coursework, and address personal challenges.
2. MPG (Mentoring through Peer Groups): In this approach, students are organized into peer groups where they can offer mutual support and share academic resources. This system fosters collaborative learning and builds a supportive peer network.
3. VM (Vertical Mentoring): This practice involves mentoring across different levels of academic hierarchy, where senior students mentor junior students. It facilitates knowledge transfer and enhances the integration of students into the academic community.

Evidence:

The effectiveness of these mentoring practices is demonstrated through various indicators:

- Student Feedback: Surveys and feedback from students indicate high satisfaction with the personalized support and guidance received from mentors.
- Academic Performance: Improved academic performance and higher retention rates among students who actively participate in mentoring programs.
- Participation Rates: A significant number of students and faculty engage in the mentoring programs, showcasing the commitment to these practices.

Problems Encountered:

Despite the successes, several challenges have emerged:

- Resource Constraints: Limited availability of faculty mentors can restrict the number of students who receive one-on-one attention, potentially impacting the quality of mentorship.
- Peer Group Dynamics: The effectiveness of peer group mentoring can vary depending on the group's dynamics and the level of engagement from all members.
- Consistency in Vertical Mentoring: Ensuring consistent and effective mentoring relationships across different academic levels can be challenging, as it requires ongoing commitment and effective communication between senior and junior students.

In summary, the multi-faceted mentoring approach at Pillai HOC College of Arts, Science, and Commerce is a commendable effort to enhance student support. Addressing the challenges encountered will be crucial for sustaining and improving the mentoring practices in the future.

The resource person for this event was Ms. Bushra Ansari (Assistant Professor, Motivational Speaker, Soft Skills Trainer). This workshop was a fun and interactive attempt at discussing the factors resulting in stress. This workshop was joined by both faculty members and students. It focused on societal pressures affecting women's mental health in order to stand up to societal expectations, which leads to unnecessary stress. The workshop began with understanding that "Learning" is a combination of the 3A's (Attendance, Attention, Absorption). It also compelled the participants in exploring their identities and personalities, further suggesting that we all have a kid, a teenager and an adult inside us. And how each one of us suppresses their needs and desires based on where and who we are with. It also dwelled in the realms of first impression and expression and how one focuses on others perceptions and that can hamper their thought processes and mental well being. It puts a spotlight on how one can become a great individual when they refrain from doubting their abilities. Lastly the workshop addressed crisis management with 3Ps (Patience, Positivity, Problem Solving), feeling confident and satisfied with oneself. The session was interactive and encouraged all the members to acknowledge themselves for their abilities without succumbing to societal pressures and expectations. The session aligned with goal three (Good Health and Well-being) of the UN's Sustainable Development Goals.

Report:-	The Institution Social Responsibility Cell in association with the IQAC of Pillai HOC College of Arts, Science and Commerce had organised a visit to Karuneshwar Old Age Home in Waje taluka on 23rd October 2023 at 11 am. The lead teachers were Asst. Professors Dr Sulochana, Ms Rachana and Mr Priyesh. There were around 20 students too who attended the old age home. The old age home housed around 50 people, who were from different strata of society. Their enthusiasm and good hearted spirit overwhelmed the onlookers. One could see the sparkle in their eyes when they saw someone was visiting them and ready to spend their time with them. The students enthusiastically participated in this event. Some played garbha to entertain them. This was indeed a great experience one could have fetched in their entire life. There were some goods in the form of sugar, detergent, apples and dry fruits given to them. At the outset the committee acknowledges the teaching fraternity who helped monetarily to make this process happen. This was a very small initiative that the committee took to encourage the young minds to tilt towards the benevolent act of servitude towards society. The committee promises to come up with more such activities in the near future too.
